Nebraska Extension facilitated Animals Inside and Out, an ag literacy program for youth in Cheyenne and Deuel Counties. Around 115 youth participated in the event.

Animals Inside and Out is an ag literacy program that helps students learn about the systems (muscular, digestive, etc.) of an animal. Throughout the day students rotated to a variety of different stations that gave them an opportunity for a hands-on experience related to body systems of animals. Out teacher that attended said, "My students absolutely loved the program! It was fun to watch the kids make the connections between what they had just finished reading in class and what they were seeing firsthand. Thanks again for providing us with such amazing opportunities!"
