Clothing garments to be modeled shall display tasteful design and modestly cover the body. Examples of design features to avoid include but are not limited to; revealing low cut necklines, extremely short hemlines, and very short shorts. After consulting with the Clothing Superintendent and clothing judge, Extension Staff will make the final determination if a garment to be modeled is too revealing. If so, it will be disqualified. 4-H'ers should confer with Extension staff prior to Clothing Modeling judging day if there is a question about the appropriateness of their design or pattern.
