Growing Together Nebraska increases food security and healthy food access. Scotts Bluff County Extension with partners and volunteers provided 1,603 pounds of fresh produce to local families in need.

Maggie and her husband, Julio, coordinate with local churches to operate soup kitchens three days a week. This year a partnership with Nebraska Extension's Growing Together Nebraska made fresh produce available to families they serve. "They do look forward to it," Maggie says. One elderly shut-in woman was so elated to receive fresh produce. She said, "Oh my gosh! I could make soup with this; I could make a salad with this. I thank you, I thank you, I thank you and God Bless You."
